A NEW ROAD.

THE M'LOUGHLIN DUMMY LINE OPEN TODAY.

The Development of the Hill Country—What Has Been and Is Being Done In This Section—The New Road and Its Equipment.

The growth of the city and county of Los Angeles is almost without parallel in the history of new countries during the past few years. The fame of this City of Angels is not bounded by the limits of a continent, and it is stated as a fact by travelers that many persons in Europe have heard of Los Angeles who never heard of California, paradoxical as such a statement may seem on first reading. Our brethren of the northern clime are mystified by the rapid development of the country, and have tried, and so far in vain, and are trying to stem the tide continually setting in this direction, and divert a part of it to their snow-kissed hills and valleys.

Of course, there are several causes for the phenomenal growth of this section of our State, and Los Angeles in particular. The climatic conditions and natural richness of the soil in the vicinity is a potent factor in the work. No section can prosper as this has done for years without some very substantial backing in this direction; and these favorable conditions, aided by the faith, enterprise, and liberality of the men who have entered here, have made us what we are and will continue to be—the most desirable and flourishing section of the United States.

An exemplification of what enterprise and pluck will do for a place is seen in the development of the western portion of Los Angeles city within a short time past. Less than two years ago that section west of Bunker Hill avenue was what might be appropriately termed "a nowling wilderness." It was rather a hilly country, with here and there a ranch-house, and almost wholly covered with a dense growth of fragrant mustard, through which the agile jack-rabbit took his lively way, and where children might lose themselves if they ventured too far from home. It was nearly inaccessible to the business portion of the city, and of little value to any person. But it was not destined long to remain in this condition. Men climbed the hill, and, looking over the land, beheld that it was fair to look upon, with its general declivity toward the rolling ocean, and its fresh breath continually blowing over it. And, knowing what railroads had done for this section on a large scale, they determined to try a railroad scheme here. The Los Angeles Improvement Company was organized. It bought large tracts of this seemingly worthless land at very low figures, and then set to work to connect it with the busy streets by a cable road. People of less judgment than the stockholders said it was a crazy scheme; that the road would never pay expenses; that no one would go off over in those hills to live; and that the road would begin at Spring street, end nowhere, and be a fizzle in every respect.

The company, however, went right ahead, secured their franchise, graded their road, ironed it, cabled it, carred it, and when it was finished a year ago last January announced the second part of the programme, namely, a public land sale at the terminus of the road, on a certain date. Auction sales of land were quite new then, but the idea took, and thousands of dollars' worth of soil changed hands on that day.

The results vindicated the judgments of the projectors of the plan. Houses began to spring up in all directions "over the hill." The Temple-street cable road was built, and this section now boasts many fine residences—the Ellis Villa College, the Belmont Hotel, churches and schools. Both roads have proved a success, and the vicinity continues its course of prosperity.

Another improvement in the direction of transportation facilities out there has just been completed, and yesterday a TIMES reporter was enabled, through the courtesy of James McLoughlin, president of the Second-street cable road and proprietor of the new line, to take a view of the hill country and the new steam road, which will be opened today.

Mr. McLoughlin became almost sole owner of the Second-street road something over three months since, and he at once proceeded to carry still further the idea of development already begun by an extension of the road.

Right-of-way and a franchise were secured, graders put to work, and now, at the expiration of ninety days, the iron is down, engines and cars ready for business. It is hardly a wonder that such energy and go-aheadativeness make sleepy San Joséans and Sacramentans open their eyes.

Mr. McLoughlin was found at the engine-house, and readily volunteered to give any information in his power. The reporter was shown the new dummy and cars destined for use on this track. The former is from the works of H. K. Porter, of Pittsburgh, Pa. It is a model of convenience and strength, weighing about six tons, and will pull, if necessary, a train of three or four cars. These are also gotten up in fine style, with large seating capacity, and well finished and lighted. They are much the finest cars in the city at the present time. The Second-street Park was visited after this inspection, and quite a variety of attractions, in the way of birds and animals, were found here, which fact, perhaps, a large portion of the public does not know. Bears and ostriches are among the exhibits, and it is the intention of the proprietor to make this a favorite resort for pleasure-seekers, as fast as a beautiful location, nature and money will allow. No intoxicating liquors are sold on the grounds.

Taking a carriage to inspect the new road, a drive to the intersection of Second street and Belmont avenue (formerly Texas street) found the workmen engaged in putting down the last rail to complete the connection. This is now the prettiest section of this hill portion of the city. The Belmont Hotel, Ellis Villa College, a branch postoffice, two or three real-estate offices, a store and a large number of residences, some of them very substantial and elegant, occupy this desirable locality. It is only a short distance down Belmont avenue, on which the new track is laid, to the Temple-street cable-road, where are more stores, offices and residences. The people living out here are trying to have one or two electric-light masts erected in the vicinity, and from the number of persons that would be accommodated, it would seem that their claim is a very just one, for more lights dark nights. At Temple street the road turns to the west and runs down that thoroughfare westwardly for about half a mile. The deepest cut is made on this run, being about eighteen feet to reach the maximum grade, which is three feet to the hundred, except for a little way on Belmont, where it reaches four feet. At the end of this distance the direction swerves to the south-southwest, skirting around the base of the hills in the general direction of the new Baptist College. The road follows this trend until it again comes into Second street, or what is called Diamond street, where it turns directly west and runs on to and beyond the city limits. Just beyond this line a branch is being constructed going around to the new college and a short distance further. All the land on this branch has been laid off and sold, and several handsome residences have been erected. The location is a most commanding and beautiful one, giving an extensive view of valley, hill and meadow to the west and south, even to the distant Pacific. The college is well on toward completion outwardly, and will be of much benefit in building up this section. From the junction before mentioned, the main line of road continues directly west, and is being pushed as fast as possible.

It is intended to put this right through for two miles, all preliminaries having been arranged to that end, and to extend it further as demanded. The road is now completed and ironed to the city limits, a distance of two miles from the Second-street cable, and of three and a half miles from Spring street. The branch to the college is in such condition that rails can be laid in a day, and such will speedily be done. Throughout nearly the whole distance the road is laid with twenty-five pound rails which will carry a load of six or eight tons to the car. It runs through one of the most beautiful portions of the city and is the most easy of access of any hill section. The land lies so that nearly or quite all of it can be utilized for building purposes. One 5-cent fare will carry persons to Spring and Second streets without change, and it is intended to run trains over the steam line as often as needed, the first trips being about every twenty minutes or half-hour.

These facts will cause a rapid settlement out this way, and already many new buildings are going up, and their number is being increased every day. Water is piped all through the country here, so that there is no lack of this valuable adjunct. Messrs. Maltman and Shatto, who own a large tract near the college, have signified their intention of constructing a nice park at the junction, where they have a very eligible location for such a scheme. It will be noticed that the new road starts from Diamond street, and enters it again on the route. By this means it avoids quite a steep grade on that street, but as soon as sufficient encouragement is given to him, Mr. McLoughlin intends to extend the cable road over this hill to connect with the steam dummy, thus giving a straight line from Spring street westward. Of course the track is rather new yet, and it will be a few days before it gets settled into a smooth condition, but the running of the cars over the track for the first time today is an event of a good deal of importance to those who are there now or may locate in this beautiful section.

THE CALIFORNIA CENTRAL.

Crowded With Freight and Passenger Business.

The California Central is over-run with patronage, and still hampered by lack of sufficient rolling stock to accommodate the really enormous business. Two passenger trains a day each way are now running between this city and San Bernardino, but only for the local travel. The old line to Colton over the Southern Pacific is still used for transcontinental business, and will continue to be until every desired facility is secured for handling everything on the foothill line.

Chief Engineer Perris states that the most important depots along the new line are already contracted for and some already building. Work on the company's improvements in this city will be pushed as fast as may be.

The freight business of the road is all it can possibly handle.

Three different parties were after General Freight and Passenger Agent Wilkins yesterday to arrange for excursions to three different points.

A Nervy Horse-thief.

Officer Dillon had a long chase after a horse-thief at 8:30 o'clock last night. Dillon left the police station at 8 o'clock to go on his beat, and when he was about to pass his house he thought of something he wanted before going to work, so he dismounted and tied his horse in front of the house, and went inside. When he came out his horse was gone. He asked some men who were standing near by if they knew where the horse was, and they informed him that they saw a man mount and ride off. Dillon was about five minutes behind, but he started in hot pursuit. The thief evidently changed his mind, for when he neared the Los Angeles River he slid off of the horse and disappeared in the brush. The officer caught his horse on Boyle Heights.

A Rare Chance.

Any one who has ever seen the Simi ranch will appreciate what a fine opportunity is now offered to investors by Mr. Daniel McFarland and others. This property is as fine and beautiful as any in Southern California, and is decidedly the cheapest land yet offered. It has one railroad running parallel with it at a distance of three miles, and the coast road will go right through it when built. We learn that the syndicate propose to form a corporation to divide and sell the ranch, which will cost only $6.50 per acre, thus giving the farming and fruit-raising people an opportunity to procure good cheap lands that will pay a reliable return upon its cost See advertisement in today's paper.

Pasadena's Youngest.

There is a big old boom on at the new town of Raymond. The townsite is not put upon the market till to-day, but already the children are crying for it. Yesterday Agent L. F. Scott sold $49,676 worth of lots there—those near the depot grounds bringing $55 a front foot.

Their Fun Ended.

James Sullivan and B. S. Malloy got into a dispute on First street, near Main, last night, and were having a regular knock-down and roll-over, when Officer Little concluded that it was about time for them to go to jail, so he herded them in.

A Huckleberry.

William Berry, an ex-police officer, was brought to the station last night about 12:30 o'clock by Officer Aubel, who picked him up on Wilmington street. He was locked in a cell, with "D. and D." opposite his name on the prison register.

To Cool Off.

James Morgan and William Benteo were making a good deal of noise on Commercial street last night, when Officer Loomis thought it was time to put a stop to it, so he marched them to the police station and locked them up.

A Card Party.

Mrs. Harris entertained a dozen ladies and gentlemen at a card party at her residence, 115 North Fort street, last evening. She was assisted by Mrs. Alexander. Refreshments were sandwiched pleasantly in between games.

A MASS OF BLOOM.

THE FLOWER FESTIVAL AT SANTA ANA OPENED.

Observations on the Spot by a "Times" Man—A Beautiful and Creditable Display—The Santa Ana Ladies Do Themselves Proud.

Woman's untiring energy in a good cause finds one more illustration in what greeted the eye in the hall of the Flower Festival at Santa Ana. As usual, on such occasions, the bulk of the work was crowded into the few hours that preceded the opening, which took place yesterday afternoon. The great success of the ladies of Los Angeles, with the Flower Festivals held here for several years, has given the ladies of neighboring towns the idea of holding like entertainments. The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Santa Ana, composed of the leading ladies of the valley, which takes in the towns of Santa Ana, Tustin, Orange, Garden Grove and Newport, have been untiring in their good work (having recently held a protracted temperance jubilee, the results of which are said to have been most gratifying), and the Flower Festival of Santa Ana, which is held under the auspices of the union, does great credit to its members. In originality of design, the various booths and pieces are certainly all that fair women and lovely flowers could make them, and the display would do credit to any large city. The proceeds of this festival will go toward the building of a temperance hall, free reading rooms and a library, and the ladies in charge are very sanguine in their expectations.

At this writing, the booths are not all completed, but the following preliminary notes can be given:

On entering the hall, on the left is the register booth, ornamented with a tasty wreath of ivy and red roses. It is in charge of Miss Jessie Millard.

Second—The G. A. R. booth occupies the corner of the hall, and is made up of tastefully arranged flags, and red, white and blue bunting. Among the decorations of this booth are two large American eagles, one over the entrance, suspended, with a hare in its talons, and the other perched on a column to the left. This booth is presided over by Mrs. M. J. Layman, the G. A. R., the W. R. C. and the Sons of Veterans.

Third—Comes a stand on which is a miniature flower ship, bearing the name "Newport" at its masthead. Mrs. Frank Humphreys does the honors here. Then comes the stage, which at present writing is not yet decorated, except by the motto, "For God and Home and Native Land," in evergreens, overhead.

Fourth—The California curio booth occupies the southwest corner of the hall, and at present gives promise of being something very handsome. Presided over by Mrs. Robert McFadden.

Fifth—Comes the confectionery booth, in charge of Mrs. C. E. French. Mrs. French, being one of the managers of the festival, seems to have been giving her time to her manifold duties, hence her booth is not yet in order.

Sixth—The art gallery occupies most of the western wall, and when fully arranged will contain many fine paintings, pieces of statuary, and other works of art. The connoisseur in charge is Mrs. George Edgar.

Seventh—The Tustin booth, containing a great variety of elegantly-worked emblems, very tastefully arranged, sets off beautifully the northwest corner of the hall. The taste displayed in this booth is only equaled by the ladies of fair Tustin. Mrs. M. J. Bundy does the honors at the Tustin booth.

Eighth—A small, peculiarly-arranged booth, representing "Rebecca at the Well," where lemonade will fill the well, and be served by Miss Crookshanks.

Ninth—We have by far the handsomest booth in the hall. It is as it should be, since it bears the name, "The Santa Ana Booth." It occupies the center of the northern wall, and is semi-circular in shape. The green-canopy roof is supported by pillars of lovely roses and evergreens. The center space, between the pillars, is decorated with a beautiful lighthouse of marguerites, set off with miniature windows of mirror-glass. From an elegant bouquet on the roof of the lighthouse will show forth a beacon light, indicative of the invitation to all to come to this lovely home of the flower. Elegant vases filled with flowers occupy the other spaces, and banks of other flowers, some with mottoes, form the stands for the vases. This attractive booth is in charge of Mrs. Dr. Bailey, who has been indefatigable in her efforts to beautify her quarters.

The tenth position is occupied by the button-hole bouquet booth, over the center of which hangs a beautiful large bell of white roses. The counter is tastefully arranged, so as to catch the eye of the boys, who will roll in their cash for bouquets. Miss Ida Barnes will sell them.

Eleventh comes the orange booth, capped on top of its canopy by a bunch of luscious-looking fruit, which gives this booth its name. It takes up the northeast corner of the hall, and presents a handsome appearance, though not yet complete. The ladies are hard at work, and promise to astonish the natives. Mrs. W. H. H. Clayton's smiles will greet the visitor to this booth.

Returning to the entrance door, we come to the Garden Grove booth, around the crown of which looms up the name "Garden Grove," wrought in plumes and flowers. The six pillars of roses of various hues and evergreen look very bright, and this booth, which is under the efficient charge of Mrs. Albert Chaffee, will be very handsome when completed. Last, but not least, we come to the center of the hall, where is found the handsome Japanese booth, covered by a large Japanese parasol and ornamented with Japanese lanterns and other ornaments of the flowery kingdom. The railing surrounding the space of this booth is tastefully decorated with evergreen and flowers. The ice cream and lunch stand occupies the hallway adjoining the hall in which the festival is held, and in charge of Mrs. W. H. Drips and Mrs. Russell.

Mrs. C. E. French and Mrs. Robert McFadden, the superintendents of the festival, have worked like Trojans for several days, and receive the praises of everybody for the efficient manner in which they have done their work. Mrs. B. Z. G. Van Cleve, the president of the W. C. T. U., of Santa Ana, also deserves special mention for her untiring efforts in making the festival the grand success that is foreshadowed at this writing. An excursion from Los Angeles is spoken of, but no further particulars could be ascertained.

POOR WAIFS.

Pathetic Appeal for Homes for Two Helpless Babes.

WANTED—IMMEDIATELY, HOMES for two infant children—girls—aged, respectively, 11 and 20 days.

In the city papers of Saturday a pathetic letter was published, ostensibly written by the little babe whom it introduced, and who was left at the door of a gentleman's home in Florence. The little waif pleaded for protection and adoption, but circumstances made it impossible for him to receive it and care for it. At the County Hospital, where another little child had been ushered into life, just as its mother closed her eyes forever from its helplessness, no room could be found for either, and no other door opened to the small wanderers. They were carried to the Orphans' Home, but its already crowded condition, the overtaxed nurse and her helpers, and the want of funds forbade the management giving more than the temporary shelter which common humanity demanded. No provision is made for State aid for children under 1 year of age, and it has been in face of positive rules that these little ones have been received, because there was no other place for them. They now appeal to those into whose hearts and homes has never come the child-life, or to those from whom have gone out the light and joy of the family circle, to receive these little ones into the vacant places, and to give them the waiting love and needed care. Further particulars can be had of Mrs. D. G. Stephens, corner of Sixth and Olive streets, or of Miss R. McManis, 95 Date street.

VICTOR BEAUDRY.

His Departure to a Home in Montreal.

Quite a party assembled Sunday morning in the special car "Carmelo" to bid goodbye to Victor Beaudry, whose intended departure from our midst has been announced. Mr. Beaudry has for years been prominent as the largest owner of hill real-estate and of the water works system, now owned by the Citizens Water Company. He now returns to his former home in Montreal, Canada, where he will permanently reside. He has been identified with business on the Pacific coast since the fifties, and has reaped a rich reward for his industry and rare business ability.

In early days, before the introduction of artificial ice machines, he supplied Los Angeles with ice made in the San Antonio Cañon, and hauled down here.

He became the owner of three-fourths of the famous Cerro Gordo mines, in Inyo county, and for years prior to the advent of the railroads the output of this mine in bullion occupied the full force of Remi Nadeau's 400-mule freighting outfit to transport it to Los Angeles and carry back the enormous amount of stores used at the mines.

Some five years ago Mr. Beaudry cleaned up in the mines, and returned to Montreal with a cool million, which he invested in Canadian securities.

Mr. Beaudry married a lady of high social position in Montreal, and foreseeing the future greatness of Los Angeles, brought his family to the coast and became interested with his brother, ex-Mayor Prudent Beaudry, in real estate and water works—investing heavily at a time when many had dark forebodings for the future.

The wisdom of his operations has been proven, as he has added a good half-million to his former fortune.

He leaves larger interests behind him, being the largest owner in the Temple-street cable railway and heavily interested in real estate in various parts of the city.

He left here on Sunday on the special car "Carmello," intending to make the journey by easy stages, stopping at points of interest en route.

He will be represented here by F. W. Wood, formerly business manager of the San Gabriel Wine Company.

CUT TO PIECES.

A Horrible Railroad Accident at Santa Monica.

Some weeks ago a man named James Walker arrived on this coast from the East and secured work on the street railway now being built at Santa Monica. He seemed to be a steady, industrious young man, and made a great many friends. Day before yesterday he was paid off. He went around and settled a few little bills he had contracted. After he had settled the last bill he deliberately walked into a saloon and did not leave the den until he was so drunk that he could hardly walk. He staggered up the track about fifty yards this side of the depot, and it is supposed that he fell down and went to sleep. At any rate, he was never seen alive after he left the saloon. At 12:30 o'clock the theater train from this city thundered into Santa Monica. It was loaded with merry-makers who had attended the grand opera, and each one of them went to sleep, never dreaming that they had just left a train that had crushed the life out of a human being. Early yesterday morning the trackmen started out to work and were horrified to find the mangled remains of Walker scattered along the track near the depot. He was cut all to pieces, and they had a hard time to prepare his remains for the Coroner. Coroner Meredith went down and held an inquest yesterday afternoon. The jury found that Walker was a native of Michigan, aged 34 years, and a single man. They decided that he was accidentally run over by the theater train, and attached no blame to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

ANOTHER CRAZY.

A Pasadena Carpenter Lodged in Jail.

A scene that will not be forgotten by the inmates of the County Hospital very soon took place at that institution Sunday night. A carpenter, named Hull, was brought to the hospital from Pasadena late Sunday afternoon. The persons who brought him in thought he was a fit subject for the hospital, and simply informed the persons in charge of the hospital that he needed medical treatment. For a while Hull behaved himself all right, but he got on the warpath before morning, and the attendants and patients of the Home for the Sick, came to the conclusion that over two dozen insane people were holding high carnival in the house. Early yesterday morning Mr. Hull was handcuffed and sent to the County Jail. He will be examined by the Commission of Lunacy today. It is said that his head was affected by a fall from a building some time ago.

Lost Man.

Frederick Zeck, who resides at 77 Walnut street, in East Los Angeles, left his home Monday morning for the courthouse, on this side, and up to a late hour yesterday nothing had been heard of him. His wife has no idea where he can be, and is considerably worried over his absence.

DR. J. S. BAKER.

The Last Tribute to One Whom All Loved.

The funeral of the late Dr. J. S. Baker took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. The funeral was very largely attended by citizens and several fraternal societies. The procession was quite long, there being forty-one carriages in line. It was led by eight mounted police and twenty-four on foot, headed by the chief and captain. The City Band followed, after which came the uniformed Knights Templar, Knights of Pythias, Stanton Post, No. 55, G. A. R., and a squad of uniformed A. O. U. W.

Rev. Will A. Knighten conducted the services in a most impressive manner. The procession started from the Masonic Hall, on First and Spring streets, and marched to Ninth street, where they took carriages and were driven to Rosedale Cemetery.

Conspicuous amongst the decorations on the coffin was the floral tribute of the members of the police force. It consisted of a blanket of roses, four feet six inches in length and thirty-four inches in width. The foundation was a solid bank of white roses, and the blanket lines were marked out in heliotrope, and down the center, in carnations, was the word "Rest." It was a beautiful decoration, and goes far to show the esteem in which Dr. Baker was held by the police officers of this city.

IN MEMORIAM.

The man on whose grave his acquaintances are ready to cast floral tributes must, by reason of his virtues and great feeling for his fellow-men, have made himself singularly beloved and strangely popular during his career; and such was the case with the deceased, Dr. J. S. Baker. This tribute from the officers of the Los Angeles police force but poorly expresses the feeling of sorrow that spread amongst them at the news of his sudden demise. His friendship for us, as for all men, did not float on the surface, nor did the depth of it lack evidence. Proof we had of his interest in us personally, and never was his great heart known to refuse an opportunity to display that charity which is the greatest of three great virtues. To the grave of eternal rest with blessings we consign him to the haven of love unknown to mortals, and with the fervent earnest prayer that his spirit has acquired that "peace which passeth all understanding."

A Smashup.

Deputy Sheriff Charley Cruz is out of luck, both in pocket and feelings. He hitched his fine driving horse near the mills on Commercial street and he had hardly turned his back when the noon whistles in the mill began to blow. The high-stepper was not used to that kind of noise, so he snapped his hitching-strap and started off on a dead run. The buggy was smashed all to pieces and the horse was considerably injured.

LIZZIE LOPEZ.

AN OPIUM "FIEND" FINALLY CONVICTED OF SMOKING.

Successful Issue of One Case of a Class Which the Police Find Hard to Nail—Full Account of the Trial Yesterday.

The case of The People against Lizzie Lopez was called in Justice Austin's court yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock. T. J. DePuy appeared for the defense, and Deputy City Attorney Dunn for The People. The woman is one of the opium-fiends who was arrested by Officer Bosqui a few weeks since.

After a jury was sworn, Officer Bosqui was called and testified that he had been after the gang for some time. He met Mascarel a few nights before he captured Lizzie Lopez, and Mascarel told him that he had given up opium-smoking, and would never be caught again. Bosqui kept a close watch on them, and the night of the arrest he saw them meet at the Plaza and made up his mind to watch them for a while. They went to a restaurant and spent quite a while eating. When they came out they took a back street and went to a Chinese joint on "Nigger" alley. Bosqui was close behind them and overheard them ask for opium. They offered the Chinaman a pie if he would let them smoke, but he refused, and they went to a room in the Roma Hotel, where Lizzie and Jesus Elias were rooming. Bosqui stationed himself outside of the room and waited until he smelled the fumes of opium. He then broke the door open and caught all three of them in the act. Lizzie and Elias were on the bed and Mascarel was at the window, having thrown the pipe out as soon as the officer broke in. All three of them were arrested and taken to the police station. The officer also captured the pipe which was thrown through the window and the layout.

Officer Haskins, who booked the prisoners, testified that the bowl of the pipe was yet warm when he got hold of it.

This closed the testimony for The People, and Jesus Elias was sworn for the defense. He said they were not smoking when the officer entered the room at the Roma Hotel, and that the pipe had never been used by them. She bought the pipe for some one else on a speculation. They met at the plaza and walked down to the restaurant.

After they had taken supper they walked down back streets to Elias' room, on Alameda street. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning. They were in the room about twenty minutes before Bosqui broke into the room. He never saw an outfit, except in Chinatown, until Lizzie brought the one captured by Bosqui. It was taken to his room by Lizzie Lopez. She was living in the room. They threw the pipe out of the window because they thought the officers might come in the room. None of them were smoking.

Lizzie Lopez testified that she met the two men, Elias and Mascarel, on the Plaza the night of her arrest. They all went to a restaurant, and, after eating, they went back to her room, and sat around talking, but they did not smoke any opium. She never saw any one smoking opium in the room.

The case was given to the jury, after short arguments by the attorneys. The jury was out but a short time, when a verdict of guilty, as charged, was returned.

The woman will be tried before a jury on another charge of opium-smoking, in the same court, this morning at 10 o'clock. She will be sentenced this morning, on yesterday's conviction.

A MAY PARTY.

The Huge Picnic Excursion to Beautiful Beaumont.

Over 175 "merry folks on pleasure bent" assembled early yesterday morning at the Southern Pacific Depot for a May party to Beaumont. There were the ladies, the misses, the babies and the baskets in great profusion. To go a "Maying" on a trip of over eighty miles meant early rising and much stirring around to be on hand. But they were all there, and nobody got left. A Southern Pacific special was in waiting with three cars, all of which were filled. Amid strains of music from the Seventh Infantry Band, which made up part of the company, the train pulled out a few minutes before 8 o'clock a.m. At 11 o'clock the party arrived at Beaumont, where every vehicle in the whole region was impressed into the service to take the company to the picnic grounds, some four miles away. The procession was truly comical, for in it could be seen conveyances of almost every genus extant. There were carriages, buggies, spring-wagons, hacks, stages, lumber-wagons, and a huge tender of a heading machine to bring up the rear. Everything was loaded down to the last man, and some fifteen were left behind for the second load. Those that were left were badly left, as the teams did not return for about two hours. Before they arrived at the picnic grounds there were some "gnawings," not of conscience, but of something close by—some of the "badly left" ones wanted to know why it was called a "May party" since the first of the month had passed by, when one of the hungriest of the crowd looked grim and replied that it must be, "because some may get there and some may not"—The gentlemen in charge were in no sense to blame, as they had made ample provision for all of the large party, but some teams did not come to time.

The picnic-ground was in the Edgar Cañon, the ride to which was a perfect delight to all.

The dinner was spread under one of the finest specimens of forest trees the writer has ever beheld. It is a monster box-elder, with seven trees springing from a common center, the branches arching outward, then downward to the earth, forming a perfect canopy of over 100 feet diameter. Under this a royal dinner was spread. Everything that could be done for the enjoyment of the party was performed by those in charge. There were tables and seats, and boilers of hot coffee, tea, milk, etc., with abundance of luncheon for those "who forgot" to bring a basket.

A flattering testimonial of delight and appreciation was drawn up by Messrs. H. C. and F. P. Sigler, Dr. Fellows, F. C. Howes and others, of the Southern California Investment Company, who successfully engineered this capital May party. Everybody signed it, and would have voted twice if necessary. The gentlemen never said "real estate" once to any of the party. But the picnickers had their eyes open to the charms of that superb gem among the mountains—Beaumont. The Seventh Infantry Band deserve special mention for their music and untiring efforts to keep all hearts merry. There were only about twelve Los Angeles clergymen in the crowd, but the folks were all the jollier.

BADLY BEATEN.

The Tribune Nine Paralyzed by the "Times" Nine.

Last week the Tribune Base-ball nine brashly challenged the TIMES Base-ball Club to cross bats upon the diamond field. The challenge was promptly accepted, and yesterday was set for the decisive struggle. The Tribunes were boastful in advance, and it is even narrated that the business manager of the amateur sheet was around yesterday morning offering $100 bets that his side would win.

At 2 p.m. the opposing forces met at the Sixth-street grounds—kindly loaned for the occasion by the managers of the Los Angeles Base-ball Club.

The game was interesting only from a comic standpoint, the Tribunes being so completely overmatched as to make hardly a show of resistance.

The principal features of the game were, on the TIMES side, Crawford's fine work behind the bat, McLellan's pitching, Ford's anchorage of third and Telle's first; for the Tribune, Caldwell's double play, King's work at first, Coltrin at second and Benjamin behind the bat.

Following is the score:

Times.	R.	O.	E.	Tribune.	R.	O.	E.

Smith's Hired Man.

John Smith employed a handsome, well-dressed young fellow, who claimed to have just arrived from the East, the other day, and put him to work in his stable and about the house. Yesterday morning he woke up and found that his nice young man had walked off with a pistol and silver watch and chain. Mr. Smith left a description of the young man at the police office, yesterday, and the officers are on his tracks.

St. James.

St. James.

The development of Southern California seems to follow in the wake of the "Santa Fe Trail," as the "People's Line" is known in the East.

The magnificent foothill country has been opened, towns created and fortunes made by the investors in town property.

Now comes the first new town in the beautiful valley of the Santa Ana,

ST. JAMES.

It is located just at the outlet of the Santa Ana canyon, near the foothills, commanding a beautiful view of the Pacific Ocean.

Anaheim, four and a half miles, Orange, five miles, Santa Ana, nine miles. It will naturally control the great business of the Santiago Valley, and there is no soil more fertile, no landscape more entertaining, no future more promising, than this first new town in the Santa Ana Valley. The finest water power in the county is close to the townsite. The mill grinds day and night, with a force of 120-horse power.

The water for the town of St. James is there now, not "to be developed," but actually there.

The townsite is clean, level and perfect.

The maps will be out in a day or two, and the day of sale, which will be by auction, to the highest bidder, without reserve, will be named soon. The sale will positively occur this month.

Remember, the first purchasers always make money in our new towns.

THE Santa Ana people have a flower festival which is well worth a visit. An extended report from a TIMES man on the spot will be found in another column.

SUNDAY EVENING the lightning got impatient and knocked thunder out of the telephone system of Oroville. It had probably been dinging away an hour and a half to wake up "central."

IT is said that a lady, who clerks in one of the departments at Washington, has precipitated an unheard-of tangle in her monetary affairs. She got married. Now, when she goes to draw her salary, she cannot sign her maiden name, which appears on the pay-roll, and the law does not allow her to draw her pay without. Uncle Sam seems unable to take cognizance of the change, and it seems to be a question as to whether the name shall be changed by legislation, or an enabling act passed by Congress.

THE San Francisco Alta revives this story, apropos of some Interstate Commerce Law incidents: When James Guthrie was made president of the Louisville and Nashville Railway, many years ago, he abolished all passes. The late George D. Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, wrote for a trip pass, and was refused. The next morning the Journal had this for a leading paragraph: "Wanted—Any man or woman who has a complaint against the Louisville and Nashville Railway Company to write it out in full for these columns." A bundle of the complaints was then sent to Guthrie, with the following note: "Herewith find divers and sundry letters touching the management of your road. Send me three annual passes in blank, or I'll print every one of them. The Journal does not ask passes for what it prints, but for what it suppresses." The passes were sent.

That Compromise.

Concerning the recent compromise of the libel suits brought against the Times-Mirror Company by H. H. Boyce and associates, THE TIMES has not yet spoken. All of the detailed reports of the transaction have been presented by inimical newspapers, and they have painted us very black. Let that go as it may; there are two sides to every question. We shall have somewhat to say on the subject in a day or two, and the public will then see that our course has been actuated by a desire to do justice all round. Col. Otis was not knifed by his partners, as a certain well-wishing morning contemporary would have it appear, but he voluntarily tendered his resignation as editor and general manager of the paper, in order to remove all entanglements from the settlement.

If Col. Boyce feels that he has been unfairly dealt with, and is not likely to receive justice hereafter, let him recall the discharges which have been entered and try conclusions.

Our Neighbors.

We are often very much amused by the amount of ignorance, and the mistaken conceptions displayed by our British cousins, not only in regard to our institutions, national habits, general progress and intelligence, but even in regard to the geography of this country. The average Britisher has but very confused ideas in regard to us in any of these directions, and it is not difficult to find among the people of the mother country those who are ready to commiserate the American lack of the cardinal virtues that are the crowning glory of the noble Briton. The truth is, American civilization has grown faster than British ideas. The development of this country has been so rapid and so extended that our slower-going cousins across the water need mental expansion before they will be able to justly measure or understand the progress that we have made, and the rapid strides that we are still making, in the direction of national aggrandizement. Such a history as our own was never written by the pen of events before. In a single century we have grown from ocean to ocean, and we touch, upon the other hand, the Arctic seas and the southern part of our continent.

Absorbed as we are with our own advancement, are we not in danger of committing the same mistake in regard to some of our neighbors that our English cousins have made with reference to us? And, furthermore, are we not in danger of losing sight of many of our commercial opportunities, and of under-rating the value of closer business relations with the countries lying within the southern half of the American continent? The South America of today is no more the South America of half a century ago than is the United States the small and feeble Republic of that period.

It is impossible for a government like our own to exist without exerting a powerful influence upon all proximate civilization. The underlying principles of American freedom are strong, and impart a security to our institutions such as the world is not slow to recognize.

The States of South America have not been blind to our progress, and they have read between the lines the secret of our success. Within a few years there have been a good many changes in that country such as will tend to stimulate its growth and development in the future.

First among its aids to more rapid progress are the new lines of transcontinental railways that have been projected and supported by the proper legislation, in addition to lesser lines, which are already beginning to form a network across the once solitary pampas plains, making communication between the different States rapid and sure, as those across the desert regions of our own Republic have made it with us.

The great rivers, too, of the country are now traversed, like our own, by steamships, and are becoming most important highways for travel and traffic.

Foremost among the countries of South America are Chile and the Argentine Republic. The former State is the one whose liberal legislation will make certain the building of two lines of railway across the continent. These roads will be the means of establishing new depots for commerce, and largely in developing the resources of the country, tap undeveloped regions of mineral wealth and shorten considerably the distance from Europe to the Pacific ports.

The railway will prove for South America what it has been for every other country where it has been multiplied, a wonderful factor in its advancement. It will make a knowledge of the country more desirable and give it fresh importance in the eyes of the civilized world.

A better knowledge of its resources, of its people and of its institutions are becoming daily of greater importance to us. Such knowledge should be sought after. The two sections of this vast continent should be one in sympathy and one in political purpose. The American continent, from its Arctic to its Antarctic seas, should be the home of American freedom. Republican institutions should have a broader foothold than even the limits of our great Republic can afford them. It is not enough to plant the principles of individual freedom in that portion of America protected by the Stars and Stripes, but this entire New World should be permeated by them, and republican institutions be built up everywhere upon American soil.

Sooner or later this will be done. The present rapid progress which South America is making will give to her before long the position which belongs to her among civilized and commercial nations. She will profit by the experiments which we have made, and will likely be desirous of growing into greatness by means of the same political methods that have proved so successful with us. The destiny of the two countries must naturally be similar, and, therefore, it will be a grand thing to acquaint ourselves a little more fully with our neighbor's ways and prospects, as well as to understand better its geography and its varied resources.

Shall We Overdo Education?

Some papers are propounding the query whether the proposed Leland Stanford, Jr., University, which, with its magnificent endowment, is to be the richest educational institution in the world, will disastrously affect the University of California; whether there is room for two such constellations of learning in the Pacific coast firmament. We incline to the opinion that both will prosper. Education and the taste for education have never, in this country, fallen short of the facilities provided for them. With expanding opportunities come expanding culture, and culture begets culture.

When the Branch Normal School was established in Los Angeles, it was freely said by people residing in the upper part of the State, and was tacitly admitted by some in this section, that there was little call for such an institution here. Many of the legislators who assisted in making the appropriation stated, more or less publicly, that it was a sop to Cerberus—that the Southern part of the State wanted something and was bound to have something, and this "something" which they voted was as good as anything else. But the Normal School, when established, demonstrated its usefulness from the beginning, and has been constantly gaining in popularity and good works ever since. So successful has the experiment proven, in fact, that another Normal School has been voted to the northern part of the State, and there is no talk about that being a sop to Cerberus. So, we shall have three normal schools, instead of one, as formerly, and each of the three will be more prosperous than was the single school in the beginning. Time may see a half dozen or a dozen similar institutions in successful operation in the State, and each will contribute, in a measure, to the prosperity of the others.

In this age of wealth and culture the Pacific coast can hardly have too many or too preëminent educational facilities. Let it rank as the Athens of America, if its attainments warrant, and it cannot have a prouder distinction. There is abundant room for the Stanford University, and, after it shall have accomplished its good work for a term of years, perhaps there will be another equally as great established. There is no danger of overdoing education.

CLEVELAND is alleged to be perspiring to find a Democrat who can fill the Los Angeles postoffice. If he were in no greater stew for a change than the people of Los Angeles are, the applicants might hold their breath for a long time. By the way, how would it do for him to try to find a Democrat who can fill the position of Postmaster-General.

MERCED, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The register of the County Jail today shows the incarceration of a whole family with the exception of the mother, who could be seen sitting in the ante-room of the jail weeeping for her wayward children, who have all arrived at a period of maturity. The following are their names and the charges against each: George Scroggins, grand larceny; James Scroggins, assault with a deadly weapon; West Scroggins, malicious mischief; Dick Osborn Scroggins, misdemeanor; and Mary Arthur Scroggins, battery.

MINING STOCKS BOOM.

The Market in San Francisco Takes an Upward Jump.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] Mining stocks today were excited, active and higher. The reason for this is stated to be that control has been obtained over the fire which has been smoldering in one of the lower levels of the Consolidated California and Virginia mine for some years past. Consolidated California and Virginia was the leading stock today. It opened this morning at $20, touched $24.50 and closed at $23, an advance of $4.37½ from yesterday's close. Best & Belcher showed an advance of $1.50, Ophir $1.75, Sierra Nevada $1.25. The other stocks also shared in the advance. The market closed firm, with heavy sales.

PLENTY OF WATER.

A Rise in Kings River Ends the Irrigation Trouble.

TULARE, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] There has been considerable feeling over the 76 Canal, at Kings River, between Samuel Fowler and Timothy Page, of this place. Fowler tapped the canal to irrigate his lands, and Page objected and brought suit against him. The case was brought up in the Superior Court yesterday before Judge Cross, who stated that he would not make any more adjudications on the matter, and the water was to be used in as many ways as were wanted, as there was plenty of water for all. The stream now is overflowing its bank. He also stated that he would give sentence in the case on Tuesday next, and that it would be very light. It is hoped that all these troubles will be settled. All is quiet there now.

Regensberger was a bright and popular young lawyer. He lately distinguished himself in the Goldenson murder trial.

Thomassen Granted a Respite.

SANTA FE, May 17.—Mrs. Hood, of Los Angeles, a sister to Thomassen, the murderer, whose execution was set for Friday, the 20th, at Socorro, has arrived in this city for the purpose of interceding with the Governor in an endeavor to secure for her brother a respite, in order that the doomed man's father, who is now en route to New Mexico from Arkansas, may have an opportunity of seeing his wayward son once more before the fatal day. Mrs. Hood made a most favorable impression upon the Governor, and, after paying strict attention to her sympathetic appeals, he granted Jasper Thomassen a respite for thirty days, so that the wishes of his relatives might be carried out.

Brutal Murder at Tombstone.

TOMBSTONE (Ariz.), May 17.—A brutal murder was committed here this evening about 6 o'clock. Jerry Barton, a noted desperado, who has figured in many shooting scrapes, struck an old, inoffensive citizen named Ed Swift, and killed him. Swift was well known in California, having several children at present in San Francisco. Barton is confined in the County Jail. Excitement over the affair is intense. Barton has killed several men in his day.

Attempted Suicide at Yuma.

YUMA, May 17.—This afternoon John Brennen attempted suicide by jumping from the bridge at this point into the Colorado River. Upon reaching the water he cut his throat with a pocket-knife, nearly severing the windpipe and narrowly missing the jugular vein. Two Copah Indians immediately put out for him in a small boat and after some trouble succeeded in getting him from the water. It is not certain whether he will survive. The reason for committing the rash act, as given by him subsequently, was that he had been troubled with pains in the head and was simply tired of living. He was not destitute, having $46 in coin upon his person.

To Parallel the Atchison.

SANTA ANA, May 17.—The Southern Pacific Railroad Company's surveyors are still pushing their lines ahead. One party are working at Sanonifre creek, on the Santa Marguerita ranch, and another are in advance looking for an outlet to San Diego. Every indication points to the Southern Pacific paralleling the Atchison from here to San Diego, although a heavy outlay of money will be required.

MONTEREY, May 17.—Townsend Hall, the aged man who was arrested on the charge of shooting William Hansen in the Sur country, was examined today and discharged, as sufficient evidence was not found to hold him. Dissatisfaction is expressed with the result. The wounded man is still delirious, and if he dies without recovering his faculties the matter will remain a mystery. No weapon was found about Hansen's place, or anything to point toward the theory of suicide.

WASHINGTON.

Dangerous Illness of Ben: Perley Poore—Gossip About California Appointments—Troops to Protect Public Lands.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] Maj. Ben: Perley Poore was taken seriously ill this afternoon in his committee room at the Capitol. The attack was the result of overwork and heat. The Major was overcome suddenly by sickness of the stomach and fainted away. Three physicians were soon in attendance, and in a few moments the patient was restored to consciousness. When his strength was partially regained he was removed to his rooms at the Ebbitt House, where he is resting quietly. It is hoped that a few days' perfect rest will restore the Major to his usual good health.

The condition of Maj. Poore was considered more serious tonight than early in the afternoon His physicians had a consultation at 9:30 o'clock, and will hold another tomorrow. After the consultation Dr. Baxter said: "We regard his condition as serious, but slightly better than at 6 o'clock. The attack is primarily due to Bright's disease of the kidneys, from which he has suffered several years. The Major exposed himself some time to the full glare of the sun. This, together with overwork, weakened him and brought on the illness."

PUBLIC LANDS NOT TO BE FENCED.

The President today approved an application from the Secretary of the Interior to the War Department for a detail of a troop of cavalry to be stationed at Cheyenne, Wyo., to aid the civil authorities in enforcing the proclamation of the President forbidding the fencing of the public domain, and directing the removal of such unlawful fencing. The request was made upon representation that parties in Wyoming had neglected and refused to comply with the terms of the President's proclamation.

THE NEW TREASURER.

Mr. Hyatt, the newly-appointed Treasurer, visited the Treasury Department this morning, and was presented to all the officers of the Treasurer's office by Assistant Treasurer Whelpley. He says he will not take charge of the office before next week, as it will require several days to perfect his official bond and to comply with certain other requirements.

TALK ABOUT CALIFORNIA APPOINTMENTS.

Before the end of the week information will be received here from Los Angeles that will determine the selection of a postmaster for that city. Sidney Lacey is no longer in the race. The President was not entirely satisfied in his own mind as to the capability of any of the men whose claims were originally presented for the office, and he took steps a few days ago to learn the name of a hard-working Democrat who would satisfactorily fill the bill.

The President informed some of the callers, yesterday, that before the expiration of the week several appointments of direct interest to California would be made. He did not indicate what the appointments would be. It is believed the office of Consul-General to Paris will be filled by the appointment of a resident of the Golden State.

The appointment of a receiver of the Land Office at Sacramento to succeed Mr. Gardiner is daily expected. E. F. Smith, E. O. Hastings, and E. E. Leake are the most prominent candidates, but it looks as though the place would go to a dark horse.

CALIFORNIA WINES.

Consul Roosevelt Says They Will Equal Those of France.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] United States Consul Roosevelt, at Bordeaux, has been making an exhaustive study into the wine industry of France. The result of his observations are summed up as follows, in a recent report to the State Department: "There is abundant expert testimony that as good wines can be produced in California as in France. Last year, while in the United States, I daily used California claret, and occasionally white wine from the same State, and I do not hesitate to say that I found them superior to the same grade of wines commonly consumed here. It must be admitted that France, at present, produces finer wines than have yet been made in the United States, but this fact is entirely due to years of experience, exceeding care and the skill employed, and not, as is claimed by the French, to superior advantages of soil and climate. The wine industry in the United States has, owing to its wide latitude, as is attested by pure and agreeable wines produced in Virginia, as well as in California, a brilliant future. In view of this fact, there is no reasonable doubt that in time there will be brands of our native wines as famous and as much in demand as those of the most celebrated wineries of France."

Seized for Stealing Timber.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—The schooner Undaunted, which arrived from Kodiak, Alaska, on Saturday, with a load of spruce poles, was yesterday seized by the United States officers on the charge of illegally cutting timber in Alaska. FRESNO, May 17.—The City Trustees at the meeting last night ordered an election for the 15th of June to decide on issuing bonds of the city to the extent of $50,000; for school houses, $25,000; for fire protection 12,500; for protection from overflow, $12,500. Later an election is to be called to vote $50,000 for sewering the city.

The Agitator's Speech Delivered Amid a Storm of Groans—Several Fights—How a Plucky Woman Squelched a Disturber of the Meeting.

By Telegraph to The Times.

TORONTO, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] William O'Brien, editor of the United Ireland, arrived this morning amid a scene of enthusiasm and excitement unequaled since his entrance to Canada. Fully 3000 men crushed and struggled with each other to catch a glimpse of him. A few attempts at hooting and hissing were made as he entered a carriage, but they were quickly drowned by the hearty cheering which went up as he stood up in his carriage and exclaimed: "Three cheers for our friends in England and the cause they are struggling for!" A cavalcade of mounted police with drawn swords and a platoon of officers surrounded the carriage. The hotel was reached without a sign of hostility, except an occasional hoot or two from Orangemen.

An army of New York newspaper men are with O'Brien, increased by representatives of Chicago papers, and they are all thoroughly prepared for a riot, and will be disappointed if it should not occur.

At the hotel O'Brien was met by a committee, who offered him an address of welcome. In reply O'Brien made a short speech, thanking the committee for their support. He alluded to Lansdowne's alleged cruelty to tenants, and made an attack on the London Times. His speech was received with cheers, mingled with hooting and hisses.

ATTEMPT TO STORM THE PLATFORM.

TORONTO, May 17.—Never in the worst days of Belfast disorder was a scene of more disgraceful rowdyism exhibited than that shown this afternoon in Queen's Park, where a crowd of Toronto Orangemen attempted to storm the platform, and failing in that, to choke off all possibility of Mr. O'Brien being heard by keeping up a continual din of groaning, hissing and cries of "God save the Queen," and singing "Rule, Britannia." It was 4 o'clock when the crowd had about fully collected, and it then seemed a fair estimate to set the number present at 15,000, although people kept arriving in such floods from all quarters after the meeting had begun that their were times when 20,000 would not be an overestimate. Many of the banks in the city were closed, and the students in the University were let loose. Many of these, with crowds of desperate-looking roughs, whose only glory in life seems to be row or riot, were organized in a compact band and excited little suspicion, because they said never a word until their time came. The first demonstration came from a solitary man at the left-hand side of the platform, who stood upon a stump of a tree, and began groaning at the meeting and at those on the platform, as though his life depended on the effort.

A PLUCKY WOMAN'S ACT.

Near him was a woman waving a green bough in her hand, and no sooner had she seen the obstreperous Orangeman than she ran the butt of the twig down his throat, which effectively choked off the disturber, amid a roar of applause from the crowd, and cries of "God save Ireland!" A rush was made for the woman, but she was among friends, and the surging wave of thousands drove back her would-be assassins. At this moment Mr. O'Brien arrived at the park in a carriage. One hundred and fifty policemen, in charge of Lieut.-Col. Grassell were scattered through the crowd, or drawn up in files on the outskirts. Sergt. Seymour was in charge of a squad of mounted men, and, when the disturbance and attempted breaking up of the meeting took place they most determinedly took their places and remained there from the beginning to the end of both Mr. O'Brien's and Mr. Kilfride's speeches. The policemen quietly folded their arms and said not a word. In all, the disturbers did not number more than sixty persons, and many of them were armed with sticks. Two sycamore trees in front of the platform were taken possession of by a band of young roughs, who hissed out into the speakers' faces during the greater part of the time, until a few men among the Nationalists caught hold of the trunks of the trees and shook the disturbers to the ground.

During the progress of O'Brien's speech many fights occurred. The Orangemen were always in the aggressive. The scenes enacted were the most disgraceful ever witnessed here.

A Rush for the Gold Fields.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, May 17.—The gold fever, engendered by exciting reports from the recently discovered mine north of San Carpojoreq River, in the southwestern part of Monterey county, has almost stilled the wheels of business in the town of Cambria in this county. Nearly all the leading men of this place have gone to locate mining claims. Samples of ore, brought into Cambria, are said to evidence the richness of the find, and men, with tents and provisions, are constantly pursuing the trail to the mining districts.

Texas Wants a Judge.

AUSTIN (Tex.), May 17.—Members of the Travis County Bar Association and other friends of Chief Justice Asa H. Willie today forwarded to President Cleveland a formal application or suggestion of Judge Willie's fitness for a place on the Supreme Bench of the United States, made vacant by the death of Justice Wood. The Governor, all the State officials, and many citizens have written to the President on the subject.

Railway Men at Chicago Agree to Form a New Transcontinental Association—John Sherman in Favor of Reciprocity with Canada.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The following letter has created quite a sensation among the Anglo-maniacs in this city. Andrew Carnegie having been requested to attend preliminary meetings and, at a later date, to contribute to a fund for the proposed celebration of the Queen's jubilee in New York, addressed the following reply to the treasurer of the fund, John Patton, the banker:

"BOUCHWICH (Isle of Wight), May 15, 1887.—There are several good reasons why I cannot subscribe to or sympathize with the proposed jubilee. First, I am an American citizen and a very staunch Republican. An American who respects the monarchical idea is inconsistent with and insulting to his manhood. I should stultify myself were I to celebrate the reign of any hereditary ruler. I was born as free as Cæsar. Second, I am at loss to see what naturalized American citizens have to do with celebrating the reign of any sovereign monarch. If they are not loyal Republicans, and true to the land of their adoption, it is open to them at all times to leave its shore and find homes elsewhere. The Republic deserves to be served by citizens true to the fundamental ideas upon which her political institutions are based In conclusion, my dear Patton, if our fellow-countrymen must celebrate something, let me suggest to them that the proper day for a political demonstration in New York is the Fourth of July. On that day let them pray that the day is not far distant when our less-favored countrymen at home shall share with us the blessings of institutions founded upon the political equality of citizens, the day when hereditary privilege will be unknown and when a government of the people, by the people and for the people, will be the watchword of English-speaking men throughout the world. Sincerely yours,

"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

SILVER.

A Plan to Control Its Price in New York.

NEW YORK, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The Commercial Advertiser says: "An organization is being affected among certain capitalists of this city to trade in silver bullion certificates as grain and cotton certificates are now dealt in. The head center of the organization will be the new Western National Bank, of which ex-Secretary Manning and ex-Treasurer Jordan are the founders. Manning and associates have planned to make New York the chief seat of the silver bullion trade, and thus transfer the control of the silver market from London to New York. Their plan of operation is to have silver bullion in large quantities deposited with the Western National Bank or elsewhere, to issue certificates against the bullion so deposited, and have these certificates traded in very much as grain certificates are in Chicago, or stock certificates are here. To accomplish that, however, it is necessary to secure the coöperation of the governors of the Stock Exchanges and secure the listing of the proposed silver certificates on the exchange. If that can be done the plan will be carried out."

Conrad N. Jordan, vice-president of the bank, was asked today if such a scheme was on foot, and said: "Such a scheme is on foot, but not with us exclusively. There are a number of men getting this idea into shape, but it will not be ready to be made public for several weeks. The Western National Bank will not speculate in silver. We will issue certificates for silver, or rather act as a registration organization, but we shall not do anything else, for we propose to do only a legitimate banking business. London now controls the silver market of the world. If this scheme goes through, as it surely will, that controlling power will be in this city. Instead of our being dependent upon London for the price of silver, London will have to depend on us." Jordan continued: "I have been called the enemy of silver. I am not, but the silver dollar can never be a dollar. It is all bosh. I would have no dollars. Silver is not used enough. Every silver dollar coined shows the disuse of silver. I should have halves, quarters and 10-cent pieces, each to weigh in proportion to the amount equal to a dollar. If the Government persists in its present ruinous policy, there is no telling where things will end."

RAILWAY NEWS.

A New Transcontinental Association to Be Formed.

CHICAGO, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The officials of the transcontinental railroads held a meeting today for the purpose of agreeing upon a tariff schedule. A unanimous vote has been recorded in favor of the contemplated transcontinental association, and now nothing remains but to form an uniform system of charges. This includes both freight and passenger rates, and absolutely abolishes any future indiscriminate cutting of rates over western roads. The agreement provides that one company cannot make a reduction unless the rest do likewise.

TO BOYCOTT CANADIAN PACIFIC.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—It is said here that the transcontinental roads will join in a boycott against the American connections of the Canadian Pacific road because they are carrying freight to them by the Canadian Pacific at a lower pro-rata than that carried by them for Pacific coast roads, though the tonnage offered by the latter is much larger than that of the Canadian Pacific. The roads used by the Canadian Pacific in entering the territory of American overland lines are the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba, the St. Paul and Omaha, and the Kansas City and St. Joseph.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

John Sherman Writes a Letter Advocating the Measure.

TORONTO, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The following abstract from a letter to Erastus Winan, from Senator Sherman, on full reciprocity between Canada and the United States, will appear in the Canadian papers tomorrow:

"No question of greater importance in foreign relations is now presented than this. As to the particular measure proposed by Butterworth, or indeed as to the extent to which reciprocity should go, and articles should be admitted free of duty in the respective countries, I do not feel justified in now expressing an opinion, for these must be the subject of negotiations between and legislation by the two countries. It would be discreditable in the highest degree for two countries having so many interests in common, and natural ties of friendship and amity, to have any irritation or controversy about their trade and interest with each other. Truly yours, JOHN SHERMAN.

AN INVITATION.

Gladstone Warmly Urged to Visit the United States.

LINCOLN (Neb.), May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] The following message was sent today by President Fitzgerald, of the Irish National League of America, to Gladstone:

Gladstone, House of Commons, London:* Learning from London cable dispatches that there is a possibility of your visiting America during the coming autumn, I hasten, as President of the Irish National League of America, to tender you the respect and cordial hospitality of this body, with the warm-hearted greeting of 15,000,000 of Irish-Americans, and, as an American citizen, to assure you of such welcome from the great freedom-loving people of this land as has never before been accorded to any visitor to our shores.

(Signed) JOHN FITZGERALD,
President Irish National League.

THE RAILWAY INVESTIGATION.

The Old Story of Credit Mobilier Again Related.

NEW YORK, May 17.—[By the Associated Press.] In the Pacific Railway investigation today a well-known broker, John Pondir, was on the stand. Pondir went over the old story of the Credit Mobilier and took occasion to vindicate Oakes Ames, saying that he was an honorable man and was killed by the infamous stories told concerning him. Pondir attempted to show a connection of Blaine with Credit Mobilier. He said that when Tom Scott was elected president of the Union Pacific, Scott told witness that he had eighty-two bonds which belonged to Blaine which the Union Pacific would have to pay.

Jay Gould was next placed on the stand and gave at length the history of his connection with the Union Pacific.

Knights and the Church.

MONTREAL, May 17.—Leading members of the Knights of Labor say that all Roman Catholic Knights have complied with the injunction of Cardinal Taschereau, have approached the tribunal of penance and accused themselves of having formed part of the order. They were granted forty days from Easter, that is to the Feast of the Ascension, which occurs on Thursday, to do this. All priests who heard confessions took down their names and addresses for future use. They were not informed that they would have to leave the order. Meetings of every section will be held in a few days, when an effort will be made to prevent the Knights from leaving the order.

Stanley's Mission for the Relief of Emin Bey Assured of Success—Execution of Five Russian Nihilists—The Pope Anxious to End His Quarrel with France.

By Telegraph to The Times.

PARIS, May 17.—[By Cable and the Associated Press.] The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 275 to 259, rejected the proposal of the Government for increasing taxation, and proceeded to discuss the order of the day. Goblet announced that the Cabinet would resign. As soon as the announcement was made the members of the Cabinet left the house. In the afternoon a resolution was proposed by the Budget Committee, affirming the necessity of adopting new plans for retrenchment. The resolution was adopted—312 to 143.

Premier Goblet, in an interview with President Grevy, tendered the resignation of himself and colleagues. The resignation was accepted.

It is expected that De Freycinet will be summoned to form a Cabinet tomorrow.

THE COERCION BILL.

Debate on the Measure in the House of Commons.

LONDON, May 17.—[By Cable and the Associated Press.] The debate on the Coercion Bill was resumed this evening in the Commons. Sir William Vernon Harcourt moved an amendment, exempting from secret inquiry all proceedings relating to public meetings or agrarian movements, including combinations to obtain reduction of rent. The bill would then deal with actual crimes and would not be a measure creating offenses.

Dillon contended that unless the amendments were acceepted the government would be able to imprison everybody who might be politically obnoxious. Landlords who had not received rents might swear out informations of conspiracy, causing all sorts of persons to be brought up for bogus inquiry. If they refused to answer questions such persons might be imprisoned as long as the government chose (cries of "Hear, hear.")

Gladstone said he regretted that the government failed to recognize the justice of granting Irish tenants the same protection they afforded English workmen. As to boycotting, the government must explain what was meant by that term. Was intimidation included, or only boycotting leading to exclusive dealings? ["Hear, hear!"] When Balfour and the government refused to yield to the obstruction of the Opposition the response was that they had a right to refuse to yield to tyranny. [Cheers.]

The amendment was finally negatived—242 to 180.

Parnell will try to appear in the Commons tomorrow. He has been advised not to attend the evening sittings.

Millais New Picture.

[London Dispatch to New York Times.]

An important subject picture comes from the brush of Sir John Millais under the title "Mercy." The three figures which compose the picture are life size, and the subject is one which the artist confesses to having had in his mind for the last thirty years, ever since the time, in fact, when the famous "Huguenot" was painted. It is the eve of St. Bartholomew, and a young Catholic noble, crucifix in cap and drawn sword in hand, is preparing to rush forth and join in the wholesale massacre of the Protestants. He wears the handsome dress of the period, a picturesque suit of brown and gold. Round his left arm is twisted the white badge which will secure his own safety. A woman, in the garb of some saintly sisterhood, a somber figure in flowing draperies of black and white, flings herself in an attitude of despairing entreaty at his feet and strives to hold him back. The angry determination in his face relaxes before the pleading of the woman, but, exerting all his strength, he prepares to cast her aside, his foot treading within an inch of the cross, which hangs by a rosary from her waist. Close behind these two, in the doorway, stands a solemn monk, a dark figure against the sky, who, with uplifted hand, beckons the young man to follow him. Scattered on a stone bench are some flowers, destined by the sister for altar decoration. The artist wishes to leave the spectators quite in doubt as to whether the pleadings for mercy will at last prevail.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

W. A. R.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION ON THE SEWERAGE QUESTION.

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—[To the editor of THE TIMES.] In your issue of today I observe the remarks of W. A. R. I do not intend to enter into any controversy with him as to the personal remarks he indulges in, but simply to say that he has nothing to lead him, to the uncalled-for remarks on this head, or to acquaint him with what amount of knowledge of sewerage drainage I possess. But it appears to me he was illy off for a subject of attack when he had to apply a meaning to my words which they do not convey, although so plainly stated.

W. A. R. says: "R. A. W. thinks nine inches better than eight-inch pipe, because it carries more sewage under the circumstances," a reason of W. A. R.'s conjuring, for R. A. W. says no such thing, but in plain words states—For the reasons given by Mr. Rosewater, eight-inch pipe is good, but nine-inch pipe will be better still. My object in writing you was to call attention to the great necessity of ventilating all sewers. In Mr. Rosewater's remarks in yours of the 12th inst. you will find he does not say one word as to ventilation, but puts it as if flushing alone keep sewers as safe and free from gases as any sewer can be. I do not suppose Mr. Rosewater can mean this, for it is against natural laws, but rather that it is an omission on his part. which he would have corrected had he seen the proof before printing. With this I am done with Mr. War, and thank you for your space, which I hope will not prove useless, when Los Angeles is about to spend a large amount on sewerage and other drains. R. A. W.

Coal.

A SUGGESTION FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF OUR HOME MEASURES.

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] In your Sunday's issue you speak of the growing demand for coal, and the prospective increased facilities for handling it. This is a growing country, and we are all glad to hear of increased supplies and facilities, which will build up factories and give employment to large numbers of laborers, thereby increasing the population, and consequently increasing the demand for home products to sustain these laborers and their families.

But, Mr. Editor, there is an undertone to this article that I, as an American citizen, do not like. Do you observe that the party spoken of goes to a foreign country to buy a foreign-built steamer, which is to be laden with foreign coal, and, after discharging her foreign cargo here, she is to be reloaded with our home products, which in due course are to be shipped across the continent over a foreign railroad?

Would it not be far better to give encouragement to those who are mining their coal in this country, where the money paid for labor goes into circulation, and where American railroads are benefited by its transportation?

Thanks to the energy and pluck of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé system, a local coal company is now able to and does sell coal of equal quality to the foreign coal spoken of, at the reduction that the gentleman referred to says he is going to make.

As the demand grows, the facilities for cheapening coal will grow and will keep pace with the great growth of our wonderful country, and I am one who believes Uncle Sam's territory is broad enough to supply our wants for fuel for all time to come. Then would it not be wise to encourage home productions and build up our own country? Yours,

AMERICAN.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, }
LOS ANGELES, Tuesday, May 17. }

Increased activity in the Wheat market at Chicago is reported today. The Grain clique in that city are again apparently having things their own way.

Mining stocks took an upward turn at San Francisco today, with Consolidated California and Virginia in the lead. The particulars are given in the telegraphic columns.

Stocks and Bonds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Money on call, easy, at 4½@5, closing at 5 offered.

Prime mercantile paper, 5@6.

Sterling exchange, dull, steady and unchanged.

The stock market was strong and higher, with slight concessions at times throughout the greater part of the day. The market was rather heavy at the opening, but became strong immediately under lead of grangers. Business was moderately active, after the advance of the first hour, but while the tone of the market still remained firm, changes in quotations were for insignificant fractions only until in the afternoon, when Jersey Central developed a decided weakness, and the general market showed a dropping tendency, accompanied by an increase in business. There was no further change in the temper of the market, but at the close was steady.

Government bonds were dull but steady to firm.

HYDE PARK!

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth, rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A., T. & S. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7½ miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 60x189 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $100 each; $40 cash, balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

LOHENGRIN.

SECOND EVENING OF THE NATIONAL OPERA COMPANY.

Wagner's Great Opera Magnificently Produced Before a Splendid Audience of Angelenos—The Opera and the Audience.

The second night of the National Opera Company's engagement here surpassed the first. Details were, naturally, more fully perfected, and the performance elicited even greater enthusiasm than its predecessor. The opera was Lohengrin; the first presentation here of Wagner's remarkable production was warmly received. The great Pavilion was again filled by a representative Los Angeles audience. Manager Locke, who notes with an appreciative eye the wonderful changes which have taken place in Los Angeles since his last visit, expressed to a representative of THE TIMES last evening his gratification and surprise at the superb audiences which the city is giving him. He paid a high compliment, not alone to the richness of dress and the fine appearance of the assemblage, but also to its intelligence and keen musical discernment.

LOHENGRIN.

A Brief Review of Last Night's Splendid Production.

Owing to the extreme lateness of the hour at which the performance of Lohengrin was concluded last night it is impossible to say much more than that it was another pronounced success, and in every respect was even more than a fulfillment of the promises held out by the management of the National Opera Company.

The principal singers were different from those who appeared in Lakme, and while it may have been partly on this account that the performance was more thoroughly enjoyed, it was also in great measure owing to the composer's power. This is the first occasion on which our public has had an opportunity of hearing a Wagnerian opera, and to hear it now, with such a perfect orchestration, admirable appointments and fine singing, was a treat such as one may not anticipate getting again in a great while.

Miss Bertha Pierson, as the prima donna of the occasion, was rather cold in the first two acts, but toward the last manifested more feeling and met with great applause. William Candidus looked the hero he personated and his voice preserves much of its original sweetness and power. Myron W. Whitney was heard to great advantage as "King Heny," his fine bass voice predominating even amid the powerful accompaniment. William Ludwig, as "Frederick Telramund," and Cornelia Van Zanten, as his wife, were especially good, and the lady's dramatic ability was conspicuous in the trying scenes, where she had but little to do with the action, but always preserved the individuality of her part.

The choruses were as fine "as usual," and the audience several times manifested a strong desire for repetitions, but the inexorable leader went straight on, and ignored the requests as calmly as if they were not audible, and he deserves the public's thanks for so doing.

The mounting of the opera was appropriate and costly. The number of performers made the stage seem almost too crowded at times. There was no incidental ballet, the mention of which is a reminder that the ballet of Monday night was cut much shorter than it ought to have been according to the programme and the management is expected to be more generous tonight. The arrangements of the house were considerably improved; there was very little crowding at the doors, matting had been laid in the passageways to deaden the noise in the front of the building, and there was an absence of the nervousness which is almost inseparable from the arrangements attending the first night of such a large undertaking.

Tonight's Attraction.

The elaborate production of Gounod's Faust promised for tonight will draw an immense audience; in fact, it is already assured that the seating capacity of the vast auditorium will be fully tested. Emma Juch, who takes the part of "Marguerite," made a great success in this rôle in Italian opera before she appeared with the National Opera Company. Mme. Juch's first appearance here tonight as "Marguerite" will be an interesting feature of the performance. Jessie Bartlett Davis, Mathilde Phillips, Messrs. Bassett, Ludwig and Stoddard are also in the cast. The opera is superbly mounted, the scenery having been painted by no less than eight distinguished artists.

At the matinée tomorrow there will be a strong attraction in Nicolai's delightful opera, The Merry Wives of Windsor, which was received with such immense enthusiasm in San Francisco last week. Pauline L'Allemand, whose brilliant singing as "Lakme" will not soon be forgotten, will take the part of "Mistress Ford," with Jessie Bartlett Davis as "Mistress Page," and William Hamilton as "Falstaff." Amanda Faber, Messrs. Fessenden, Whitney, Stoddard and Lee are also in the cast. In the Windsor Forest scene of the last act around hero's oak is danced the elfin ballet. The too-brief season of American opera will close tomorrow night with an elaborate production of Verdi's grand opera Aida.

Its Source of Wisdom.

The critical notice of Monday night's performance of Lakme at the Pavilion, which appeared in yesterday morning's Tribune, was marked by an intelligence so unusual to that journal, and the evidences of musical knowledge on the part of the writer of it were so conspicuous, that inquiry became rife as to who this genius might be who oracularly stated that "G in alt was nothing to Pauline L'Allemand," and that the chorus, "as usual," did their parts admirably.

A little investigation revealed the fact that the Tribune "criticism" is stolen bodily from the San Francisco Chronicle of April 21st, and made to do duty, with the alteration of a few lines at the beginning, for a notice of the performance here.

In simple justice to a contemporary, however, it must be admitted that the able details of Mrs. Jones' dress and Mr. Smythe's buttonhole bouquet are probably original.

Beats Real Estate.

A plausible, well-dressed, elderly man, has been calling on ladies and offering them bottles of cement for mending broken crockery, and in some instances has actually obtained $2.50 a bottle for it. Now, as 25 cents would be a very liberal estimate of the cost of production, here is a profit of just 1000 per cent.

Money Is No Object.

The lives of your children are of priceless value. Every child is subject to sudden attacks of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is always alarming and often fatal. The only rational plan is to be provided at all times with the safest and surest remedy, and promptly treat the disorder in its first stages, and before the vitality becomes exhausted. Unexpected delays so often occur in sending for a physician or medicine, especially during the night or from a distance, that no one can afford to risk such uncertainties when life depends upon promptness. Keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy at hand for instant use. It is made for bowel complaint only and is unquestionably the most reliable medicine ever brought into general use. The price is no object compared with its value in saving life. Sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

For fear of losing a day's work, many persons put off taking physic until Saturday. The better plan is to not delay, but take it as soon as needed; it may save you a hard spell of sickness. If you want the most benefit from the least amount of physic, without causing you any inconvenience, loss of appetite or rest, take St. Patrick's Pills. Their action on the liver and bowels are thorough. They give a freshness, tone and vigor to the whole system, and act in harmony with nature. Sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

CATARRH!

THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

CONSUMPTION,

Together with diseases of the EYE, EAR AND HEART,

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.,
M. C. P. S. O.,
No. 275 North Main Street,
A few doors south of the new postoffice, Los Angeles, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by

DR. WILLIAMS,

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and oet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for consultation and examination, but if impossible to do so can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions. Address,

OUR SEWERS.

COL. GEORGE E. WARING WRITES AN OPINION ON THEM.

His Opinion of Sewage Farms—An Outlet to the Ocean—The Question of Population—The System He Deems Advisable.

Col. George E. Waring has addressed the following communication to Council:

To the Honorable the City Council of Los Angeles, Cal.: I am in receipt of a copy of a report of the City Surveyor on the proposed sewerage of Los Angeles, dated May 3, 1887, and I submit my views herewith concerning the same subject:

I beg to say at the outset that your Surveyor gave me every possible opportunity to investigate the general features of the situation, and, so far as data already secured made possible, to examine its details. His long familiarity with the ground, and his careful and intelligent consideration of the conditions controlling the work were of great value to me, and must be of even greater value in perfecting the details of the system.

The problem presented to you is unusually difficult, and its difficulties are greatly increased by the uncertainty as to the direction in which the growth of population is to extend. Indeed, it would seem impossible now to determine where to provide for dense and where for sparse population; the only safety would seem to lie in arranging for the sewerage of each section of the city under the assumption that it may at some future time be fully occupied. This, however, will not add very materially to the cost of the work, as, no matter where the greatest population may be located, the whole expense of outlet works would, in any case, be the same.

The City Surveyor formulates his advice under the following headings:

First—The disposal of sewage on lands near the ocean.

Second—With a possible outfall at the ocean.

Third—All sewage to be collected at the Southwest corner of the city.

Fourth—A maximum flow at the rate of one hundred and fifty gallons per head per day.

Fifth—Provisions for a population of two hundred thousand.

(1.) There is no question in the mind of any engineer familiar with the disposal of sewage by irrigation as to the propriety and advantage of that process.

I have myself examined several of the larger sewage irrigation farms in England, the immense works at Berlin and the very large and carefully conducted experimental works at Paris. I am familiar with other works of this character, by description and study. I have myself carried out irrigation disposal works under very difficult conditions in several instances in this country, and even in the Eastern and Northern States, where land is more difficult to obtain, where the winters are severe, and where at all seasons disposal is subject to interference by heavy storms. There can be no question as to the propriety of this means of purifying the effluent of city sewers. In a country like this, where irrigation is a necessary adjunct of profitable cultivation, where land-owners stand ready to receive sewage in great volume and where there is so rarely an interference from rain and never from frost, it will surely be found that this means of disposal, under all ordinary conditions, is the only one worthy of your attention.

After a careful consideration of the City Surveyor's suggestions and conclusions on the subject, although at first inclined to favor delivery to lands near the city, I have reached the opinion that the area selected by him is, on the whole, that which it is most advisable to use. The intervening alkali flat would be unsuitable, partly because of its being subjected to overflow; the land between that and the city limits, as I am informed, is underlaid by water-bearing gravel, which is likely to become an important source of water supply; and though, undoubtedly, sewage might be delivered upon it without danger to health, the sentimental objection to a combination of even purified sewage with its water is too strong to be disregarded.

The large body of land within reach of the proposed irrigation ditch, beyond the first tunnel, is subject to none of these difficulties; it can be reached without undue cost, and its use will, unquestionably, afford a final solution of your disposal problem for all time. It has the further advantage that if this opinion should prove not to be well founded, and if this land should at any time prove inadequate, the course followed in reaching it is the one best suited for a direct discharge to the ocean. It is not unlikely that a more careful and extensive survey of this proposed outlet will develop a better and more economical line. The cost of running such experimental lines would be trifling as compared with the economy resulting from the finding of a better one; this, however, is a matter of detail with which your surveyor is fully competent to deal.

(2.) Should the outlet to the ocean be found necessary at a future time, it will certainly not be required except during the rainy season, when any possible disadvantage resulting from the discharge of sewage on shore during the summer season would not exist.

(3.) The southwest corner of the city seems, obviously, the best point of discharge on the ground of economy as well as of convenience. The sewerage of the limited area in the southeastern portion of the city can be sent to that outlet by pumping, as suggested, for a moderate cost, or it may be found unobjectionable to deliver it to a special irrigation tract of its own. This is a question of detail which does not affect the general scheme.

I have examined the general conditions of the present disposal by irrigation over lands near the city. As now managed this process is objectionable. It is possible, that these objections might be overcome; and there is no doubt that after the proper sewerage of the city, by a strictly cleanly process, the odor of the sewage itself would not be noticeable. The present plan of conveyance by open earth ditches would, however, always result in considerable annoyance; to overcome this annoyance would require a somewhat costly finishing of all ditches in proximity to highways, and a complete control by the city authorities of the processes of distribution. These difficulties would not be met with in the proposed more distant tract.

(4.) The use by the general public of so large a volume as 100 gallons per head per day implies an unlimited water supply, and very lavish and careless habits on the part of the people.

Mr. Eaton thinks that this use is to be provided for, and his judgment in the matter is, of course, much better than mine.

It is usual to provide facilities for the transportation of 50 per cent. more sewage than the average of the daily flow, because the largest use of water is during certain morning hours, and there is very much less during the night. It is, however, questionable whether it is necessary to provide for so large an increase in your case. The legitimate use of water for such household purposes as increase the morning flow does not probably amount, even in your case, to more than from thirty to forty gallons per day, and it is this portion of the flow that is subject to increase. The flow that is due to carelessness and to wanton waste is probably nearly as great during the night as in the daytime.

However, while it would probably be safe to provide for an increased flow of 25 per cent., the additional cost of a provision for 50 per cent. would be comparatively trifling, and in such cases it is wise to take the benefit of the doubt unless there is some controlling reason other than the economy secured for restricting the size of the sewers. The chief argument in this direction would relate to the ability of the smaller flow to maintain a cleanly condition in sewers proportioned for the larger flow, and it will be found on an investigation of the effect of less than one hundred gallons per day in flowing through sewers provided for one hundred and fifty gallons per day that no deposits are to be feared with the smaller amount.

I, therefore, indorse the recommendation that provision be made for the large volume of 150 gallons per person, if the supply is to remain abundant.

(5.) The question of the extent of the future population of your city is one with which I am not qualified to deal. It seems to me that all that is strictly necessary to regard, aside from the question of cost, is the regulation of the size of the sewers to the ability of the flow to keep them clean.

As a very large proportion of your sewers will be laid with a steep inclination, and can be kept in good condition by moderate flushing, and, as even the flatter areas of the city have almost invariably a good fall, I feel confident that a proper regulation of sizes and flushing facilities will maintain a perfectly good condition, even though the population may not exceed one hundred thousand. It seems, therefore, perfectly safe to leave the discussion of the question of the extent of population to yourselves. Sewers constructed for two hundred thousand people would not be overcrowded, except as to the main outlet, by a population of three hundred thousand, so that a determination in favor of that amount would seem to answer all possible conditions.

With the imperfect data now in possession of your surveying department, it would be, of course, impossible to determine the details of the different parts of the system. I would suggest, however, for your consideration, the following points:

(1.) The division of the city according to topographical indications into numerous small districts; the combination of these districts into larger sub-main districts, and the final concentration of these sub-main districts at a general point of outfall at the southwestern corner of the city, as suggested.

(2.) Ample experience has shown that properly laid and properly regulated six-inch pipes are ample for the discharge of the sewage of a very considerable district; also, that such pipes, when properly laid, are not subject to obstruction to a degree that need be considered—for example, in Keene, N. H., where there are more than ten miles of six-inch pipes in regular use, there has not been a single obstruction due to the introduction of foreign substances since the original construction in 1882. With your more rapid inclination, liability to obstruction would be even less. I would therefore suggest the use of these pipes in all cases where their use by a dense population in the districts that they serve would not fill them at any hour of the day more than half full. Below such points, the sizes should be increased to eight inches, ten inches, and larger, as the increasing flow may require.

(3.) I have a strong opinion, based on ample experience and observation, that it is better not to use man holes on sewers smaller than ten inches in diameter. I believe that man holes are much more likely to be a means of obstruction by the introduction through them of dirt, rubbish articles that it may be desired to get rid of, than to be useful in the removal of such obstructions.

There is now available for the inspection, the flushing and the cleansing of these small sewers a very simple device by which access is gained from the surface through inclined branch inspection pipes, looking both up and down the line. If these are placed at intervals of 300 feet it will be easy to reach any point of the sewer with heavy cleaning wires or force rods.

Manholes should be used on sewers ten inches in diameter and larger, but even these, up to a size of at least fifteen inches, should give access only to a covered opening in the pipe, so that matters falling or thrown in from the surface cannot enter the sewer, and so that the regularity of the flow may not be impeded by the enlargement at the man hole, as usually made.

I think that changes of direction should be made on curves of large radius, not as has often been done by sharp curves within the manhole itself. The facility for the inspection of the work by looking from one manhole to another is of fanciful rather than real value. If the sewer can be seen through in this manner it needs no attention. If it needs attention because of an obstruction it cannot be seen through. Its condition can always be determined by the use of cleaning rods or wires.

(4.) Throughout a very large part of the whole system of sewerage, the natural flow will be sufficient to remove deposits, but such deposits are quite sure to be found near the upper ends of the lines, and here the natural flow will not suffice to sweep these away before they shall have had time to putrefy and produce a foul atmosphere. It has been my custom, and has been found most useful to furnish the upper end of every branch of the system with a small automatic flush tank, which may be fed from the water supply or by the sewage coming from a few adjacent houses. This suffices for maintaining a cleanly condition throughout the whole system.

(5.) The sewers should be ventilated through house-drains and soil-pipes. The drains should enter the sewer above the flow-line. There should be no traps in their course nor in that of the soil-pipes, which should end open-mouthed above the roofs. Experience has shown that this system of ventilation is unobjectionable and entirely effective.

(6.) There may be a few instances in the more level parts of the city where special large flushing tanks fed by sewage, or better, where convenient, from the irrigation ditches, would be advantageous. This is a detail which can be determined only in the perfecting of the final plan.

The main outlet sewer will, at least, for some years, require heavy flushing. Fortunately, this can easily be arranged by a large flush tank built on the surface at or near the beginning of the out-fall drain, and supplied from the irrigation ditch near by.

(7.) In my opinion, it would be better in all cases to use circular sewers rather than egg-shaped ones. The latter are useful chiefly where there is a great variation in the volume of flow, due to the excess of rain water. Where this is excluded, as it would be in your case, the variation can never be so great that ample additional space will not be afforded by sewers of circular section. Such sewers are cheaper in construction and are in all respects advisable in your city.

(8.) Much of the difficulty of this whole case relates to the peculiar local conditions, the outlying portions of the city being of such contorted grades that it will be impossible to locate the sewers to the best advantage without much careful study in every case, in the completion of the plan for sewerage. This part of the work will require close consideration at the hands of your City Surveyor. There is no case where it will not be easy to secure a sufficient grade and a proper out-fall for every section, but there are, doubtless, many cases where an attentive study of the relations of different parts of each district to each other, and to the whole scheme, will not be necessary for the most satisfactory and most economical disposition.

(9.) The whole plan being completed and made in all respects satisfactory, every effort should be made to secure a close adherence to it in the future. The whole system cannot be completed for many years, but it would be a misfortune if future administrations should change the plan, even in detail, unless after the fullest and most careful consideration, and with no other motive than the public good in each instance.

Perhaps it will be possible in submitting the vote on the bonds for the work, to limit every expenditure to the exact carrying out of the plan as submitted. Respectfully submitted. GEORGE E. WARING, JR.

The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great Sarsfield's Chronic Ulcer Salve.

These remedies are well known in Central and Northern California, and are now introduced in the southern counties. The MAKING OF CERTIFICATES has related so largely to fraud that the public has naturally grown suspicious of them. But those here referred to are by such prominent citizens, of such irreproachable character, and the cures are so well known, and the witnesses are so easy to reach, that we make the references without any hesitation:

MRS. H. C. GOODRICK, 28 Hawthorne street, San Francisco, 8 years a sufferer from chronic ulcers, and her case abandoned by physicians, permanently cured. Certified to by Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper, the well-known philanthropist, and president of the Kindergarten Association, San Francisco.

MRS. M. R. ADAMS, formerly of Sacramento, completely cured at the residence of her brother, Benjamin Welch, master car-builder of the Southern Pacific Company, Sacramento, of running sore on the arm of 8 years' standing, and that had nearly sapped her life.

W. S. DOAN, noted inventor of the steam wagon, Sacramento, 31 years of fever sores, cured in 40 days. Certified to by William Guttenberger, ex-City Trustee, Sacramento; Alex. Neilson, John Driscoll and H. G. F. Root, proprietor of the Union Foundry, and others.

JAMES MCCORMICK, vice-president Bank of Redding Shasta county, 8 years' suffering from worst character of rectal ulcer, permanently cured in 3½ months.

W. A. DEAN, brother-in-law of M. H. de Young, of the San Francisco Chronicle, cured of aggravating piles and fistula in five weeks.

REV. J. T. HUFF, Turner Station, Or. (refers to Rev. Dr. Foot, Sacramento), cured of BLOOD POISONING of many years by use of the BLOOD REMEDY and SALVE. His letter is a remarkably warm indorsement.

The Death of Love.

And is he dead at last? He lingered long,
Despite the fever-fits of doubt and pain;
It seemed that faith had wov'n a web so strong
'Twould keep him till his pulse beat true again;
Center of so much youth and hope and trust,
How could he crumble into common dust?

Cold blew the icy winds of circumstance;
Prudence and penury stood side by side,
Barbing the arrow shot by crafty chance,
Suntoning the balsam from the wounds of pride;
Slander spiced well the cup false friendship gave,
And so Love died. Where shall we make his grave?

Scatter no roses on the bare, black earth,
Plant no white lilies; no blue violet bloom.
Weak in his death as feeble in his birth,
Why should life strive to sanctify his tomb?
Even gentle memory is by truth forbid
To honor aught that died as light Love did.

Let the rank grasses flourish fearless'y,
With no fond footsteps brushing them away;
While the young life he troubled, strong and free,
Turns to the promise of the world's new day,
Leaving the darkening skies to close above
The unhallowed burrial-place of shallow Love.

CRAZES IN CANDIES.

Sugared Rose Leaves and Violets—Fruits Dipped in Cream—Other Novelties.

"Tastes vary from season to season in candies as in flowers and hats," said a State street candy manufacturer. "There'll be a tremendous run one year on something that won't be called for half a dozen times the next. Just now the marshmallow and French cream caramels take the lead. Next to these maple, vanilla, walnut, and chocolate are the favorites. There's a steady call, too, for butter-creams and nut-drops. Maple creams, walnut candies, and nugat are standard goods also.

"Chocolate nugat is made of chocolate, honey, sugar, almonds, and pistache nuts. The white nugat is prepared in the same way, with the chocolate left out.

"A very popular confection now is 'plantation drop.' It is nothing in reality, but old-fashioned southern molasses candy made with great care and pressed into small lumps, just the right size for the mouth. Old-fashioned gum-drops are looking up a little lately. They went quite out for a while. I don't know why they are finding favor again, unless it's because there's considerable 'chew' to them.

"People eat candy everywhere now, and on all occasions. Why, we have so much call for something that ladies could eat in church, at the theater, and opera without attracting notice and without soiling their gloves that we invented a little gum-arabic candy for that purpose that we named 'church drops.' It is so small that it can be slipped in the mouth unobserved, and has great staying qualities. A good many ladies carry handsome charity boxes filled with them suspended from their waists.

"Speaking of table confections, did you know that fine creams, creamed fruits, and candied flowers are taking the place of glace fruits for deserts? Glace fruits are not purchased to a third of the extent they were a couple of years ago. Fresh fruits dipped in cream are very popular. Those who buy glaces in variety ask for cherries first, and, after them, for plums and pineapples. Not one person in five hundred knows what angelique is. They usually inquire the price of 'that pie-plant.' Now, angelique is a plant somewhat similar to sugar cane.

"The most recent expensive accompaniment for creamed fruits and the correct wind-up for an ultra-fashionable lunch is candied flowers. No entertainment of this sort is really a swell affair without them. To be frank, I can't perceive their alleged delicious qualities myself, but they are an expensive novelty, and have been sanctioned as a luxury by aristocratic society."

"What is their retail price?"

"Three dollars and $3.50 a pound. Rose leaves and violets are the only kind of flowers utilized for the table yet, but I expect to see apple-blossoms, peach-blossoms, geranium leaves, and any number of others dipped in boiling sugar and prepared for the table.

"Just taste of these violets," he continued, holding out a glass plate filled with lavender-hued, sugared flowers.

"Well, what do they taste like?" he demanded, as the visitor nibbled a blossom or two.

"Like the end of a lead pencil," was the reply.

"That's just it. The flavor of candied violets is like cedar, and one can get just as much satisfaction from chewing a common lead pencil as out of a $3.50-pound of these blossoms. The rose leaves, you will see," he added, taking up another plate heaped with shriveled pink rose petals, glistening with sugar, "convey the inevitable suggestion of a hair dressing. But they're novelties, as I said before, and that's what people want."—Chicago News.

Cure for Most Dangerous Wounds.

An intelligent and trustworthy correspondent has sent us the following: The smoke of woolen rags is a cure for the most dangerous wounds. A lady of my acquaintance ran a machine needle through her finger. She could not be released till the machine was taken to pieces. The needle had broken into her finger in three pieces, one of which was bent almost double. After repeated trials the piece were extracted by pincers, but they were very strongly embedded. The pain reached to the shoulder, and there was every danger of lockjaw. The woolen rags were put over the coals, and she held her finger over the smoke, and in a very short time all the pain was gone and it never returned, though it was some little time before the finger healed. This is but one of many instances of such cure, some of them taking place after several days from the time of the wound. Let woolen rags be kept sacredly and always at hand for wounds. The smoke and stench will fill the house, perhaps, but that is a trifle when the alternative is lockjaw, or even a long, painful sequel to a wound. Another instance, was the wound made by an enraged cat, which tore the flesh from the wrist to the elbow, and bit through the fleshy part of the hand. One ministration of the smoke extracted all the pain, which had been frightful.—Boston Transcript.

The Lady Operator.

There evidently is one kind of business for which women seem to be well fitted judging from the number engaged in it, and that is telegraphy. Strolling about New York and dropping into almost any telegraph office from Harlem to the Battery there may be seen the female operator, and as a general thing she will be seen to be young and pretty and wide awake to her business. She will sometimes have about her a number of subordinates of the opposite sex in the form of callow youths and messenger boys over whom she queens it with a right royal will and an air of authority that is charming to behold. Generally these young women are very pleasant and obliging; only occasionally will one come across a terror, whose very look will freeze him to the marrow. However, they all seem to give satisfaction to their employers and to attend well to their work, and appear to be rapidly monopolizing the telegraphic business. Far out on the Western plains, wherever there is a railroad station, almost invariably the traveler sees a pretty lace or muslin curtain at the window, a bird-cage hanging up aloft, and some flowering plants on the narrow sill, or a vine trained up over the red door (these stations all along the line are painted a dull, dark red), and other signs of the feminine presence, and if he looks out as the train stops he will be nearly sure to see a bright, neatly-dressed, white-aproned young woman come to the door and stand gazing out at the train, watching the passengers with a half-pleased, half-sorry air. This is the local telegraph operator, who has taken up her lonely life out here on the alkali desert amid the sage-brush, and whose only glimpse of the world she has left behind her is this brief acquaintance with the trains which pass and repass two or three times during the day. These are true types, all of them, of our brave American girl, whose courage is equal to any emergency.

A Queer Faculty.

One of the most remarkable instances of a retentive memory known is that of William Wilhite, colored, a resident of the county poor-house. Bill is blind and has been since boyhood, caused by the enlargement of the forehead, almost covering up his eyes. He is better known as Blind Bill, and makes his semi-annual visit to Lexington to see the town. He can, without a single mistake, tell each and every one who has lived at the poor-house during his long term there, covering more than twelve years. Their names, the date of their arrival, giving the day, etc., or the month and year. He can tell you the number of deaths that have occurred, the cause, also the date and day of death. He knows the streets of Lexington, and many of them are hilly, rough, and have a number of steps and terraces, better than many who have lived here longer, and with his long cane needs no other guide to go and come when he pleases. But the most remarkable thing about Bill is his sense of touch. He can tell everyone who has lived here any length of time by taking hold of their hand in his, and feeling for the various marks of his different acquirements. He recognizes some by a wart, a mole, or a scar, or perhaps some enlargement of the finger joint. Mr. Frank Mattox, a citizen of the county who lives twenty miles in one direction from town and Blind Bill seven miles in the other, happened to meet him. Said Mr. Mattox to someone standing by:

"Bill has not felt of my hand in ten years. I wonder if he will know me now?"

"Yes, see," said many.

Bill was directed to him, and taking hold of his hand he began feeling it all over, and, said he:

"I know who that is. That's Mr. Frank Mattox."—Atlanta Constitution.

She Knew Her Man.

Prof. X., an excellent educator and profound student, who does not spurn a reasonable share of homely household duties that falls to the lot of every head of a New England family of moderate circumstances, was in his den deeply absorbed in the contemplation of an abstruse subject, when his wife opened the door and called softly to him:

"My dear, could you help us in our house-cleaning by beating just three rugs that you'll find out under the south window of the parlor? If you will please take them out into the back yard and beat them and hang them on the line, and I'll be so much obliged."

The Professor arose, seized the most serviceable walking-stick, and went out into the yard, and deeply absorbed in the learned meditations that had occupied him in the house. He took one of the three rugs from under the parlor window, transferred it to the back yard, beat it long and manfully, and hung it on the line. When he came back for another rug he was still too much absorbed to notice that there was still three rugs under the window, and, when he had beaten another, and had hung that out, and had come back again, and there were still three rugs under the window, his meditations never switched off from the subject of their concentration to the regular and mysterious renewal of the third rug.

And so he kept on beating those three rugs and meditating until the morning wore into midday, and the professor began to grow hungry; and when the yearnings of appetite actually brought his contemplation down to ordinary things, it occurred to him to look at the clothes line, and there he counted no less than sixteen rugs, all beautifully beaten.

There are a good many men in New York who would give considerable to be served as was Henry Dumble, of Kingston, Canada. He is sixty-eight years old, and for years has been perfectly bald; but last spring hair began to grow on his head, and now he has a fine crop of elegant black hair, and his whiskers, which have been gray for twenty years, are turning black too.

Mrs. Cohn—"Solomon, ma tear, I got to get me a new dress, ain't it? Dot galico dress is terrible vorn out." Mr. Cohn—"Times is hard, Rebecca. Vait for a veek, ma tear." Mrs. Cohn—"For vot for vould I vait a veek, Solomon?" Mr. Cohn—"I expegt to fail negst veek, und den times vill be better. Siehst du?"—Kambler.
